Simply put, I use Microsoft and Linux and NEED there to not only be a choice out there for me - but I need to know that the choices are top quality workmanship.

If there is no choice, I am more likely than not going to end up with low-end quality work and have to live with it.

Microsoft was made as a "lowest-common denominator" product. Bill quickly realized this mistake and took his OS to new levels - for Corporate ownership only! This proves where his intents were - not with providing high-quality products for home users.
